ELSTONVILLE MAN SUED
BY FLORIN AUTO DEALER

John E. Miller, Elstonville, was given a hearing yesterday before Alderman Doebler at Lancatser, on a false pretense charge, and the case was continued for one week.

Nathan Jashick, Florin, Pa., the prosecutor, charges that Miller refused to deliver a title for a car he bought from him. It is alleged that Miller stated the car was free from debt and that subsequently it was ascertained that $400 was still unpaid on the machine.

SUES OWNER OF FLORIN
"AUTO GRAVEYARD"

---

Sergeant Harry Edie, of the State Highway Patrol, has brought suit against Nathan Jashick, of near Florin, for maintaining a nuisance. It is alleged by the patrolman that Jashick has an "auto graveyard" along the Harrisburg pike, near Florin and that some of the junk is allowed to remain on the pike. The accused was arrested by Constable Douthrich and gave bail for a hearing before Alderman Burkhart, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

BENN AUTO WRECKING BUILDING DESTROYED

About 6:30 Monday morning fire completely destroyed the two story frame office building and warehouse of the Penn Auto Wrecking Company, along the concrete highway, west of Florin. It is owned by Nathan Jaschik, of Lancaster.

Workmen noticed flames on the second floor and our firemen were notified. They responded with the large pumper and drawing water from the small stream near the farm of Elmer Strickler, succeeded in extinguishing the flames. This frame structure was connected with another building but the firement cut off the path of the flames, which was very good work. The Elizabethtown Fire Company also responded but did not go into service.

The entire building 24x36 feet and its contents which included 312 new tires, 550 tubes, and all kinds of other auto accessories, were buried. The loss is estimated at $12,000 partly covered by insurance.

Local Doings Around Florin

Mr. Chas. Darby, who is employed at the Penn Auto Wrecking plant west of town, met with an accident last Thursday. He tried to put a belt on a machine while it was in operation when both his hands were caught. While no bones were broken he sustained numerous cuts and bruises. A fellow workman nearby, noticing the accident, shut down the machinery which saved Mr. Darby from more serious injury.

TWO MEN ASSAULT GAS STATION ATTENDANT

When he is said to have refused to serve two unidentified men with gas early Sunday morning, Madison Dent, sixty-seven, colored, night watchman for the Penn Auto Wrecking company, west of Florin, was dragged from his office to the Harrisburg pike, then assaulted and robbed. His assailants got less than $6, Dent told police.

Found in a semi-conscious condition by workmen several hours later Dent was taken to Dr. A. F. Sander, of this boro, who ordered his removal to the Lancaster General hospital. He suffers lacerations bruises of the head.
